

JULY 25
THRU
27
2022

ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Vienna, Austria
UNIVERSITY OF VIENNA

International Society for Intelligence Research (ISIR)

 Intelligence
www.isironline.org

Lifetime Achievement Award Address

Aljoscha Neubauer
University of Graz

Aljoscha Neubauer is professor of differential and personality psychology, former President of The Austrian Society of Psychology, and author of multiple books. His main research focus is on human abilities—including intelligence, creativity, and social/emotional competences—and their neurophysiological bases.

Distinguished Contributor Interview

Matt McGue
University of Minnesota

Matt McGue has conducted research in behavioral genetics for more than four decades, becoming one of the field's most distinguished practitioners. He has contributed to some of the most important research topics concerning the genetics of intelligence, including the resemblance between twins reared apart and the increase of heritability with age.

Holden Memorial Address for Distinguished Journalism

Jochen Paulus
Wiesbaden, Germany

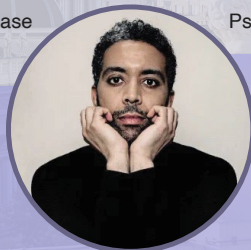

Jochen Paulus is an award-winning freelance science journalist specializing in psychology and medicine. His awards include the Media Prize of the German Society for Psychiatry and Psychotherapy, Psychosomatics and Neurology (DGPPN) and the Journalism Prize of the German Society for Psychology.

Anna-Lena Schubert
Heidelberg University

*Cognitive control and intelligence:
A neurocognitive psychometrics perspective*

KEYNOTE SPEAKERS

Abdel Abdellaoui
University of Amsterdam

Gene-environment correlations across geographic regions affect genome-wide association studies

Welcome Talk: July 24 (17:00 CEST)

Please join us for our opening talk by Professor Matt McGue of the University of Minnesota with refreshments courtesy of the Institute for Mental Chronometry (IMC).

LOCAL HOST:
Professor
Jakob Pietschnig
jakob.pietschnig@univie.ac.at

Thanks to the generosity of the IMC, financial support for travel and accommodations is available for presenting graduate students and postdocs.

See isironline.org for information on how to register, submit an abstract, find hotels, and more.